About the Private Investors Forum

The Private Investors Forum (PIF) is a non-profit consortium of accredited private investors and angel investor groups in the Mid-Atlantic Region.

PIF accomplishes this mission by hosting the Annual Angel Venture Fair and quarterly educational meetings for accredited private investors for the exchange of due diligence knowledge on specific investments. To further enhance the group's mission, PIF established the PIF Due Diligence Fund to assist and encourage investor members.

The Private Investors Forum's peer network of angel investors facilitates the introduction of entrepreneurs and investors through circulation of materials and presentations; it does not function as a securities broker-dealer, investment advisor, securities exchange or clearinghouse.

Prior to emerging as the Private Investors Forum, the organization was known as the Pennsylvania Private Investors Group (PPIG), an angel network of accredited private investors which gathered to review business plans and to make investments in young companies.

Today, the Private Investors Forum enjoys a close relationship with LORE (an angel investment network), Ben Franklin Technology Partners, and Innovation Philadelphia.
